

Coaching Skills For Supervisor Using GROW Model

Date : 22nd Aug 2025

Time : 10.00 am – 12.00 pm

Trainer

Mohd Fauzi Janal
Professional Learning Facilitator
HRD Corp Accredited Trainer

Who is Supervisor?

A supervisor is an individual who oversees and manages the work of a group of employees or a specific department within an organization. To ensure that the assigned tasks and projects are completed efficiently and effectively, also providing guidance, support, and leadership to their team members.

Organizational Structure

The figure below represents a structure of a company.

MANAGEMENT

SUBORDINATE

3

Success Factor As Supervisor

Administrative

supervisor responsible for many company procedures that the subordinates are not aware of, such as reporting, time management, acting as a link between the management and the worker etc.

Technical

supervisor will be expected to help other do the technical work. Technical know-how of what is to be done is very crucial.

Interpersonal

Becoming an effective supervisor involves learning a whole set of leadership skills, such as coaching and mentorship skills, negotiation skills, and communication skills among others.

SUPERVISOR'S

Competencies

Key Roles Of Supervisor

Leader

Communicator

Coach and Mentor

Conflict Resolver

Performance Monitor

key roles of supervisor

	Roles	How
 Leader	Provide direction and guidance to their team. Supervisor sets goals, motivates employees, and leads by example. Involves in making decisions that align with the organization's objectives and inspiring team members to achieve their best performance.	Leads their team by setting clear performance targets and motivating employees through recognition programs and regular team-building activities.
 Communicator	Effective communication is crucial for a supervisor. It involves conveying information clearly and efficiently, listening to team members. Ensuring that everyone understands their responsibilities and organizational goals. Good communication helps prevent misunderstandings and fosters a positive work environment.	Use regular team meetings and one-on-one sessions to communicate updates, provide feedback, and address any concerns. Open communication ensures that all team members are aligned with the company's objectives to achieve target
 Coach and Mentor	Supervisors act as coaches and mentors by providing guidance, support, and training to their team members. Help employees develop their skills, advance their careers, and achieve their personal and professional goals. This role involves identifying training needs and providing opportunities for continuous learning.	Identify training needs through performance reviews and provide opportunities for professional development. Mentor junior staff, helping them to understand their career paths and develop necessary skills.

key roles of supervisor

Conflict Resolver

Supervisors must address and resolve conflicts within their teams by involves in mediating disputes, understanding the perspectives of all parties involved. Finding solutions that are fair and effective. Effective conflict resolution helps maintain a harmonious work environment and prevents disruptions to productivity.

when conflicts arise between team members, supervisors mediate discussions to understand the issues and work collaboratively to find a resolution that satisfies all parties involved.

Performance Monitor

Supervisors are responsible for monitoring the performance of their team members. Setting performance standards, conducting regular evaluations, providing feedback, and implementing improvement plans. Monitoring performance ensures that the team meets its targets and contributes to the organization's success.

use performance management systems to track employee performance against set targets. Conduct quarterly performance reviews and provide constructive feedback to help employees improve their performance.

3

Supervisor Responsibility

Supervisor's Responsibility

to management

- ✓ achieve daily targets
- ✓ receive assignments from management
- ✓ implement the management plan
- ✓ provide reports to management
- ✓ provide feedback to management
- ✓ give suggestions / ideas to the management
- ✓ control the cost / budget that has been set by the management
- ✓ build positive relationships with management
- ✓ deliver input / information from employees to management
- ✓ plan and implement improvement activities

Successful people have a social responsibility to make the world a better place and not just take from it.

Carrie Underwood

Supervisor's Responsibility

to subordinates

- ✓ to protect workers welfare
- ✓ ensure employees comply with company rules
- ✓ listening to and solving employee problems
- ✓ ensure employees understand all management instructions
- ✓ provide adequate training
- ✓ create a safe and harmonious environment
- ✓ ensure employees understand the company's objectives
- ✓ ensure employees understand the desired quality product
- ✓ provide guidance to problem employees
- ✓ receive and consider ideas from employees

"With great power comes great responsibility."
- Voltaire

Supervisor's Responsibility

to other supervisors

- ✓ helping each other in solving the daily problems of the employee and operational departments
- ✓ information sharing through meetings and discussions
- ✓ share guidance / advice on safety at work
- ✓ consensus in planning & decision making

- Emotional Intelligence
- Managing Workload
- Communication
- Employee Development
- Performance Management
- Adapting to Change
- Decision Making
- Managing Different Personalities
- Balancing Authority and Empowerment
- Resolving Conflicts

I

Challenges

as a supervisor

Coaching Skills for Supervisors

Who are difficult workers?

Someone who does not behave in professional manners at their place of business.

Characteristic of difficult workers?

1. Poor job performance
2. Doesn't work well with others
3. Not responsive to coaching (refuse to listen and accept feedback)
4. Resistant to change
5. Never take ownership

Method in handling disrespectful workers in your workplace

1. Remain calm when facing disrespect
2. Listen
3. Provide clear feedback
4. Document incident
5. Enforce rules

Tactics for working with difficult workers

1. Don't react
2. Develop rapport
3. Focus on what you can control
4. Treat the person with kindness and respect

Understanding Coaching

"Coaching is a structured conversation that helps individuals unlock their potential, improve performance, and achieve specific goals — through guidance, active listening, and asking the right questions."

"Coaching is a developmental approach used by supervisors or managers to support team members in solving problems, improving work performance, and growing their professional capabilities."

Other Development Tools

Training :
structured process that provides learners with the knowledge and skills required to perform specific tasks or improve performance.

Counselling :
a professional, confidential process that focuses on helping individuals deal with personal, emotional, or psychological issues affecting their well-being or performance

Mentoring :
a long-term developmental relationship where a more experienced individual (mentor) provides guidance, support, and wisdom to a less experienced person (mentee).

Similarities

- All are developmental tools used to enhance an individual's growth and performance.
- Communication skills such as active listening and empathy are essential in all four.
- All may occur in the workplace context, though counselling often involves more personal issues.
- Trust and rapport are crucial for effectiveness in coaching, mentoring, and counselling.
- Each may lead to increased self-awareness and improved decision-making for the individual.

The GROW Coaching Model

GROW Model is one of the most effective and widely used frameworks for workplace coaching. It helps supervisors guide their team members to solve problems, improve performance, and take ownership of their growth.

GROW = Goal – Reality – Options – Will (or Way Forward)

Originally developed by Sir John Whitmore and colleagues (Whitmore, 2009).

Understanding GROW Coaching Model

Goal

What does the employee want to achieve?

- Help team member define a clear, specific, and achievable goal for the session or for the longer term.
- Align goals with performance objectives, KPIs, or personal development.

Questions to ask

- What do you want to achieve from this discussion?
- What would success look like?
- How will you know when you've achieved it?

Example (Supervisor context):

"Your team missed the deadline last month. What would a successful project delivery look like next time?"

Reality

What is happening now?

- Understand the current situation honestly and objectively.
- Encourage self-reflection: what is working, what's not, and what are the obstacles?

Questions to ask:

- What's happening right now?
- What have you tried so far?
- What's stopping you from moving forward?

Example:

"Let's look at what caused the delay. Were the resources enough? Was there any miscommunication?"

Option

What could you do?

- Explore all possible options, even if they sound unrealistic at first.
- Encourage creative thinking without judgment.
- Let the employee come up with ideas – build ownership and confidence.

Questions to ask:

What could you do differently?
What are the alternatives?
Who could help you?

Example:

"What are some ways you can ensure better planning? Could using a shared timeline or assigning clear checkpoints help?"

Will

What will you do next?

- Convert ideas into action.
- Set commitment, deadlines, and accountability.
- Ensure the employee owns the plan and feels motivated.

Questions to ask:

- What will you do now?
- When will you do it?
- How committed are you (on a scale of 1–10)?

Example:

"Let's list your action steps. Can you commit to updating your team weekly on progress?"

Coaching Tips for Supervisors

✓ What to DO in a Coaching Session

1. Build Trust First

Create a safe, respectful, and non-judgmental space. Start with rapport before jumping into issues.

2. Ask, Don't Tell

Use open-ended questions to encourage reflection. Let the employee explore their own solutions.

3. Use the GROW Model

Guide the conversation with structure: Goal, Reality, Options, Will.

4. Be Fully Present

Give your full attention (no phones, no rushing). Use active listening: nod, paraphrase, and summarize.

5. Focus on the Future

Keep the discussion solution-oriented and forward-looking.

6. Respect Confidentiality

Conversation in coaching should remain private (unless safety or policy is at risk).

7. Follow-Up

Track progress, check regularly, show continued

✗ What NOT to DO in a Coaching Session

1. Lecture or Preach

Coaching is not training or a one-way instruction.

2. Judge or Blame

Avoid criticism or sarcasm — it shuts people down.

3. Solve the Problem for Them

Avoid jumping in with your solution; let them discover theirs.

4. Rush the Process

Coaching takes time. Be patient and give space to think and respond.

5. Rely on Assumptions

Ask questions instead of making assumptions about the person's intentions or reasons.

6. Turn It into a Performance Appraisal

Coaching is developmental, not evaluative.

7. Forget to Set Clear Next Steps

Always end with a clear action plan and commitment.

Case Study: Poor Attendance in a Manufacturing Factory

John is a production line operator at a manufacturing plant. Over the past two months, he recorded poor attendance, he is taken leave or arrived late 7 times, which affects line productivity and puts pressure on his teammates.

You as John supervisor's, decides to hold a coaching session using the GROW model to help John take responsibility and improve.